By HENRY V. KING.

In a series of sprints beginning a few minutes before midnight Constante Girardengo and Carlo Olivieri, the Italian team, were lapped in the six day bicycle race at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, but because of bad picking-up and foul riding by a majority of the other teams the judges did not penalize them. Instead Charley Piercy and Vincent Madonna were set back one lap. They participated in the "jam" for a few minutes and then left the track, and the penalty followed.

The spirit that cost the coveted ground and the Italian pair to be lapped lasted for more than ten minutes. Constante Girardengo, followed by Madonna, Eaton and Drobach. Dupuy sped down the south embankment and after three rounds of the track he was in the lead. He took the lead from the Italian pair. He took the lead from the Italian pair. He took the lead from the Italian pair.

The Italians are extremely popular with the crowd because of their frequent falls and the fact that they were the first to be lapped. They were the first to be lapped. They were the first to be lapped. They were the first to be lapped.

The official sprints were exciting and the finishes close, but it was the wild riding of the Italian pair that stole a lap that aroused the crowd to the highest pitch of excitement. From 7 o'clock until almost midnight there were few intervals in the excitement. There were few intervals in the excitement. There were few intervals in the excitement.

Lang Out of Race.

After Lang was removed to his room he was examined by the physician and was discovered that he suffered from a rupture and was hurt internally. It was then announced that he was officially out of the race. This news was a crusher to Ostertiller, who has four hours to obtain a new partner. At the present moment there is no team riding that feels like retiring, so it looks as if Ostertiller will also have to leave the scene.

Alex McBeath of Australia caused the spill, and he was disqualified after he won the heat. He also was penalized six points. The other spills were not as looking and did little damage. Piercy went down and cut his right arm and Gaffney took a header and was badly splintered.

In the first sprint for points McBeath took the honors. He sprinted to the front in two laps from the end and held it until he passed the judges a length ahead of Buysse. Godivier was third, Cory fourth, Hill fifth and Madden sixth.

Marcel Dupuy captured the second in a hair-raising finish with Olivier. Ostertiller was third and Madden fourth. After McBeath was disqualified in the third Godivier was awarded stellar honors. Aerts was placed second and Cory third.

At 6 o'clock the crowd to a high pitch of enthusiasm in the fourth, when he went to the front three laps from home and held on to the end. It was the best of the race, for during it almost every contestant tried his mightiest to pass Goellert. Magin finished second, a length and a half behind Goellert and a similar distance in front of Walker.

McBeath Wins Another.

Undaunted by the disqualification, McBeath came back with a great burst of speed and sped off with the fifth. Cory was second, Madden third and Hill fourth.

The seventh went to Buysse, with Old Robach second, McBeath third and Hill fourth.

Spelsma scored an easy victory in the eighth. De Ruyter was second, Constante third and Eaton fourth. The ninth went to Godivier with Drobach second and Hill fourth.

Goellert won the final, which was a rough and tumble affair. He was poked several times, but extracted himself in a final lap, sped to the front and won by a half length. Eaton was second and Magin third. Spencer finished third in this event, but was disqualified for fouling.

At the end Madden and Magin were leading in the point score with 106 points. They were one point ahead of Goellert and Hill, who had 105. Hanley and Keller were third, far back with 81.

Professional Boxers' Fight Vanted in Armories

State Armory Board Refuses Permission for Bouts Between Skilled Men.

By CHARLES F. MATHISON.

The hopes entertained by promoters of boxing that the State armories would be thrown open to them were obliterated yesterday when the State Board of Armory Commissioners, Gen. John F. O'Sullivan, president, and the other members, in a unanimous vote, refused to permit any boxing contests in armories except those in which soldiers are the contestants, the events to be under the management of military men. In explaining their action the armory board issued the appended statement:

1. Armories are constructed and maintained primarily for the housing and training of the military units quartered therein. Any other use authorized by law is temporary and should in its nature be completely subordinate to the needs and purposes of the military service. It is the belief of the members of the commission that the large sums of money to be gained and disbursed as a result of the conduct of professional boxing contests, the number and character of people interested in promoting such bouts, as well as the making of the average crowd witnessing them, would not only introduce into the life of military commands temptations, influences and an atmosphere not only distracting to the training of units, but out of keeping with the ideal of the best standards of the National Guard and Naval Militia of the State of New York.

2. The conduct of professional boxing in armories would necessitate business relations between fight promoters and the commanding officers of armories for the making of contracts and agreements for the use of the armories for the conduct of such bouts and the number of applications for such purposes and the investigations and negotiations necessary in connection therewith would make such demands upon the time of commanding officers of armories as would constitute a serious interference with their military duties and civilian occupations.

3. Professional boxing in its relation to the proposed use of armories cannot be considered without recognizing the fact that among devotees of this sport are to be found a very large number of irresponsible persons who would constitute, in many cases at least, a considerable percentage of the audience who would attend at the armories to witness the bouts. The presence of large numbers of such persons in armories would be objectionable and not in the interest of the State or of the military and naval forces and might constitute a menace to good order and military discipline.

The mass of men composed of the National Guard and Naval Militia are young men. They represent, moreover, both in themselves and in their families the best citizenship of the State. Their presence in armories would be an interference with their military duties and civilian occupations and about the armories where their young men are undertaking training shall be wholesome and uplifting morally and socially, as well as physically. Up to the present time such influences have been maintained in armories throughout the State. It is the opinion of the commission that the families of the young men who are in the armories for the instruction of professional boxing bouts in armories as incompatible with the standards mentioned.

Gov. Smith Approves.

A special despatch to THE HERALD from Albany says that Gov. Smith approved the action of the armory board.

DEMANDS MORE FOR KIMBALL'S RAP IS LEADER IN FIELD

Whitted Tells Why He Wants More Money.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 23.—George Whitted, the star all round performer of the Pittsburgh Pirates, denies that he is holding out for more money. He expects more money for being ready to go in any time at any position and play winning ball. In a letter to a friend he says he does not like the infield, and besides believes that young Barnhart, who superseded him at third in the last two weeks of the season, will make good there. Whitted says he prefers the outfield. As regards money, he says:

"If I am worth a certain amount that I am getting to play one position, what am I worth if I can and will at any time go in and play any position that needs my service? When it comes down to facts, it is likely that 'Gibby' does not need me now. He has a boy on third who looks like the money, and he has a mighty good looking outfield. What he does need is a shortstop. If I am to continue around different positions, thereby shortening my baseball career, I want pay for it."

Whitted refused to comment on Whitted's statements, but it is rumored that the last named will be involved in a deal that will bring Maranville to Pittsburgh.

IN THE BOPED ARENA.

Joe Welling, if victorious over Benny Leonard at Madison Square Garden next Friday night, will be a wealthy youth. He will get the complete prize promised by Tex Rickard, said to be $15,000; second, he will get a $2,500 belt awarded by the self-named Rickard, and if by any chance Leonard should fail to make the weight of 135 pounds eight hours before ring time Welling will get the $10,000 forfeit money that William Gibson asserted was posted with Tex Rickard. With all these riches before him it will not be surprising if Welling makes a desperate effort to defeat the champion.

There will be two boxing entertainments in this city to-morrow. Charlie Beecher and Earl Puryear will meet at the Commonwealth Sporting Club in the afternoon and Tommy Noble and Sammy Sieger will be the attraction at the Pioneer S. C. in the evening.

Dave Driscoll of the Arena A. A. of Jersey City has signed Frank Caserio, the International amateur lightweight champion, to box Sam Mosberg, winner of the lightweight amateur title in the recent Olympic games at Antwerp, in the main event of twelve rounds at the Arena on the evening of December 23.

Ever Paid at Auction for Gelding of His Age.

By GURNEY C. GUE.

Sanardo, 2,000, a six-year-old pacing gelding, was sold yesterday for $12,000 at the Old Glory horse auction in Madison Square Garden. This is the highest price ever paid at auction for a gelding of his age and gait. Thomas W. Murphy, who trained Sanardo last season, was the high bidder. For whom he bought the horse nobody knows. Franklin P. Downs of Boston, who paid $10,000 to A. H. Cowden for him about two years ago, was the seller.

Pacers with such fast records as Sanardo's are not usually worth much. Unless they outclass all the other fast ones their earning capacity is small. The price paid by Murphy indicates that he thinks Sanardo is the fastest harness horse in the world. Murphy's guess ought to be good. He bought Sanardo for $3,200 as a yearling for Mr. Cowden and trained him as a trotter. He was three years old. When he took to pacing Mr. Cowden closed him out. He shares the old dislike of harness horses at that pick up both feet on the same side at the same time.

Sanardo earned $10,756 in his first campaign last year, taking a winning race record of 2:00 1/4 at Lexington. This year he raced in the free for all class at Lexington, in October, forced Louis Gratton to pace two heats in 2:00 to beat him a short head. In his last race at Atlanta single G. beat him in 1:59 in a finish as close as the ether. Sanardo wears few boots, no hobble and an open bridle. He was bred by the late L. V. Harkness of New York.
